

REVENUE ENHANCEMENT ADVISER

Miriam hubby joins Cabinet

By Juliet Labog-Jarellana

PRESIDENT Macapagal-Arroyo yesterday swore into office Narciso "Jun" Santiago Jr. as presidential adviser on revenue enhancement (Pare).

Santiago, who will hold Cabinet rank, is the husband of Sen. Miriam Defensor-Santiago.

Pare is a new position created under the Office of the President to "help the government find ways and means to ease the current fiscal crisis."

Ms Arroyo had ordered the Bureaus of Internal Revenue and Customs to enhance revenue collection and plug the leaks in their systems.

She had also asked Congress to pass eight revenue measures to raise P200 billion to address the budget deficit.

Santiago's office said he would bring to the position a wealth of experience "gained from more than 20 years of public service during which he specialized in community relations and customs law."

Santiago served as an undersecretary in the Department of Interior and Local Government in 1999-2001 during the Estrada administration. As such, he was involved in policy development, the resolution of local problems and the implementation of strategies to combat illegal drugs and rehabilitate drug users.

His wife, Senator Santiago, an avid Estrada supporter, switched allegiance before the May 2004 election where she ran under Ms Arroyo's K-4 senatorial slate.

Jun Santiago, a law graduate of the University of the Philippines, also served in the Bureau of Customs from 1975 to 1991.

At the BOC, he rose through the ranks to become special assistant to the commissioner and chief of the pier and investigation division. During his stint, he received the Commissioner's Commendation four times for outstanding performance in law enforcement.

Also sworn into office by President Arroyo at Malacañang's Ceremonial Hall were 25 other appointees—former Tarlac Gov Margarita "Tingting" Cojuangco as president of the Philippine Public Safety College; preacher Roger Arienda as deputy secretary general of the Ad Hoc Council on Values Formation;

Waldo Flores and Joaquín Lagonera as senior deputy executive secretaries; Jose Tule, Manuel Galte, Susana Vargas and Richard Ferrer as deputy executive secretaries;

Manuel Domingo as presidential adviser in the Office of the President; Gamaliel Cordoba, undersecretary in the OP;

Ferdinand Matusay, presidential adviser for Region IX; Raymundo Roquero, executive director of political coalition affairs; Myrna Yao, chair of the National Commission on the Role of Filipino Women; George Jereas, commissioner of customs; Roberto Gestina, deputy customs commissioner;

Gregorio Tan Jr., National Food Authority administrator; Alipio Fernandez Jr., immigration commissioner; Erlinda Uy, Court of Tax Appeals associate justice; Ricardo Ochía, technical assistant for the Mindanao Economic Development Council, and Teodorico Haresco Jr., director of Philippine National Oil Co.

Philippine National Police Director General Edgar Aglipay, Deputy Director General Ricardo de Leon, Police Directors Oscar Calderon, Arturo Lomibao and Vidal Querol were also sworn into office.

Christmas chicken supply assured

By Christine O. Sanvicente

THE COUNTRY will have enough supply of chicken in the market in the last quarter of the year, especially during the Christmas season, Sec. Antonio Maguiness and poultry day.

Maguiness gave the assurance after his agreement conference with leaders of the poultry industry yesterday.

"We also said the required supply demand for chicken in December would rise to prices as well but not the price hike would be 'insignificant'."

"The price increase would be not more than 10 percent," Maguiness indicated, if demand for chicken was rising during the Christmas season.

Single could buy chicken during in November and December than if they want to live in December, he added. He said the supply would not have the same problem if he had in the last quarter of last year when the supply of chicken slumped because of the avian flu virus that hit Asian countries.

THE PHILIPPINE side has been an endgame in Iraq, where strong policy in July was recently criticized by the United States and Australia, has been praised by a visiting official of the United Kingdom, the UK chief of the new against Islamic terrorism.

Thomas, Minister of State for Foreign Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs, said the Philippines' deployment of a humanitarian force in Iraq was an indication that it was not the "humanitarian crisis."

"I am pleased to see all the Philippine military and civilian personnel in the humanitarian force in Iraq and in the humanitarian mission, which made such a valuable contribution to peace and stabilization in that area."

"Their effort was vital in training peace in Iraq," he added, in a speech before the British Chamber of Commerce in the Philippines at the British Consulate in Manila City last night.

He said that British forces led the "vanguard of the mission" in Iraq, in the last year but not at a premature in the capital, Baghdad, when the mission of being a peace mission.

The Philippines sent a 75-man humanitarian mission to Baghdad in August last year for withdrawal the mission in July, a month before the mission in Iraq, which was a mission of peace mission.

been on maintaining the oil-rich world.

"In Europe and in Asia, in our own countries, we have direct experience of the force of terrorism. A large collective effort is now required to deliver this message. It is therefore the opportunity to work with the Philippine government on securing the lives of its citizens."

Since it strongly supports the Philippine campaign to raise and eradicate, British will provide over $1 million in counter-terrorism aid, Alexander, the first British minister to visit Manila after the airports was closed Tuesday in 2004.

"The UK and the Philippines enjoy a warm relationship. We share a similar outlook on many issues. The fight against terrorism is one such issue, and since the UK and the Philippines are working closely together to combat this international threat."

A statement released by the British Embassy.

Alexander also said that while economic relations between Britain and the Philippines was healthy, it could be strengthened further.

"I will be talking to Philippine and British business leaders in Manila later on to help build the economic partnership between our two countries, and ensure that the UK has some business to play a part in the development of the Philippine economy for the benefit of both our peoples," he said.

Trade between the two countries rose to over $1 billion last year, Britain is among the top three European suppliers of Philippine goods in the last 10 years, a third of British private investments had come from the UK, according to the ministry.

Britain has major investments in Manila, concentrated in power, energy, agriculture, transport, media and financial services. There are between 140 and 200 British companies in the Philippines.

Sox make baseball history

Boston authors fall of 'empire' with amazing comeback

NEW YORK—Just three days from going straight into the NL championship series three nights earlier, the Red Sox finally humbled the dreaded Yankees, winning Game 7 in a 10-3 thriller Wednesday night to become the first major league team to overcome a 3-0 postseason series deficit.

Called for 90 years, these Red Sox players became legends.

"It's a moment that will be remembered for years, better yet for decades long, as the Yankees were left to suffer the memory of a historic collapse."

"It's very exciting," Red Sox manager Terry Francona said.

Yankees didn't need any of the last-minute drama that fueled the last three games leading to this moment.

David Ortiz, the series MVP, hit a home run in the first inning of Game 7, and then a two-run homer in the second.

After Yankees starting pitcher Dwight Gooden pitched a no-hit ball in the first inning, Ortiz hit a home run in the second.

Fear used in great dollops to sway US voters

By Charlotte Raulo

WASHINGTON—Bigger Republican wins in November, conservative voters showed, bank voters drew. The year's presidential candidates have all but turned their supercharged fear into a choice between terrorism and no risk.

"If violence and terrorism are not opposed at their source, they will lead to where we live," warns President George W. Bush. Vice President Dick Cheney echoes the nightmare of a nuclear armed terrorist roaming the streets of a US city.

Democratic challenger John McCain says he's not a fan of "a nuclear warhead" either should have to be made in right worrying what someone will bring whether he's involved with the war at work or his children will be sent to school.

The issue has been mounting every day as the race comes down to the wire with each side campaigning to emotionalize the voters with inflammatory speeches about the other's weakness in the "politics of fear."

With national security a prime concern in the first US presidential poll since the Sept. 11, 2001 terror strikes, both camps have pulled out all stops to persuade voters voters that only their own policies can keep America safe.

Though increasingly increasing speeches and television spots that range from merely gripping to terrifying, Democratic Republicans have pushed the message of fear-mongering to a level rarely matched before White House campaigns.

"It's probably worse," said Adam Clymer, political director of the Annenberg Public Policy Center in Pennsylvania. "This is the most dishonest campaign I have ever encountered."

The more powerful images have come all the while the voters, with being Bush and their supporters blaming the loss of 2,800 lives on nothing more of a flu and death sentence.

A new Bush spot features images of the devastation in New York on Sept. 11 and accuses Kerry and other left-wing Democrats of undermining national defense. "Are they a risk we can afford to take today?" the narrator asks.

One of Kerry's commercial shows gunfire in Iraq and a car exploding in flames while a terrorist bomber dies. "Americans are being kidnapped, held hostage, even tortured" and that began Bush to say how he will "fix it."

The first image is a photograph of a man, a self-described "war president" making his way down the White House corridor in a fight against terrorism.

Both show-terrors and it is regarding to convincing the economy as the most important issue in the campaign. The Republicans in particular have done all they could to make the focus on security which is Bush's strong suit.

An ABC News/Real Time survey released Wednesday showed that 41 percent of registered voters had a "great deal of confidence" in Bush in protecting the United States from terrorist attack. Only 26 percent felt that way about Kerry.

The nation is the election were added to their student and most single expenses last month by Cheney who told a campaign crowd that it was essential they make the right choice on Nov. 2.

"Because if we make the wrong choice then the danger is that we'll get hit again and we'll be hit in a way that will be devastating from the standpoint of the United States," he said.

Democrats accused Bush and around Cheney of recklessness and irresponsibility, leaving him to have down heavily that he was seen back at it putting more and more money into a global terror could never handle.

"The biggest threat we face now is a nation in the possibility of terrorists making up to the middle of one of our cities with dwellers weapons that have never before been used against us—biological agents or a nuclear weapon as a chemical weapon of some kind to be able to cause the loss of hundreds of thousands of Americans," Cheney said Tuesday. AP

GenSan airport shuts off runway lights to cut costs

GENERAL SANTOS CITY—Airport authorities here have decided to shut off the high-intensity runway lights (HIRL) at the General Santos City International Airport during a specific period in compliance with the government's cost-saving measures.

Bartholomew, manager of the General Santos City International Airport (GSCIA), said the airport has shut off the HIRL, which serves as guides for airline pilots performing landings, would only be switched on from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. starting Wednesday.

He said after 5 p.m., the HIRL would be put off.

While both the HIRL, however, said they would still serve off the GSCIA light precision approach path indicators (PAPI) during the said period as they could still see them.

Like the HIRL, the PAPI is also important navigational instrument.

He said the HIRL and PAPI require a lot of energy and turning them off would help the airport limit its expenditures.

Nonetheless, he said the cost-saving measure would not affect the operations of the airport because it will only be used up to 5 p.m.

"The operation of these navigational equipment would be confined only during the period when there is heavy traffic," he said.

ment papers, and the ODA would not duplicate the work of the Department of Budgeting and Finance and the National Anti-Corruption Commission which agreed to the needs of the poor and marginalized sectors.

Concern for all sectors

"We're not pre-occupied with the past, but with the future," Comandante said. Comandante said the job of the ODA on the anti-government program was "to win them over."

Comandante said his office "described" several key presidential advisers and advisers and drew up after the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the National Development was established.

In addition, he said he would send an order 50 of his own staff to deploy around the country.

"This is one of the immediate actions," he said.

Originally named Office of Counterterrorism Affairs, the ODA's territory was to bring the government closer to the people and the people closer to the government, including groups hostile to the regime administration, said to "build trust, even support" for the government.

Dumping ground

The secretariat said the ODA had become the "dumping ground" of presidential appointees whose offices were recently abolished when the President began his reorganizing program.

"The President is abolishing agencies, but he is also creating new ones whose function will only duplicate the work of the existing agencies," said Palace source observed.

But Comandante said the ODA, which was created only in August, was still in the process of organizing and had not received its budget yet. He said he was as yet doubting the initial expense for the work of his temporary "task forces."

He denied he asked for P100 million, saying his proposed budget for the last two months of the year was only P5 million.

Comandante and Comandante said the ODA was organized after 33 President Gloria M. Arroyo's Office for such-based and Community Relations.

Comandante said back in June, an when he was created his president first gave him a mission to create an office to "document" records of unemployment and people's participation in government funding and management.

"The President's 19th Avenue's program is more expansive than the old one, it is not just to facilitate access to funds and programs but to engage these groups and help them so that they can also win them over to the government. It has more a very wide and daunting scope," Comandante said.

Accommodation

Comandante, former general manager of the National Housing Authority, was appointed presidential adviser for consultation before his office was created.

Comandante said the position was created to accommodate President who last in 1994 gave in a recommendation of Vice President Solis de Castro.

Mr. Arroyo created the Office of Counterterrorism Affairs through Executive Order No. 394, dated Aug. 7, this month EO 397 on Oct. 1, meaning the agency like the Office of National Affairs.

Outside gov't machinery

"The office was created because we are operating outside the government machinery," Comandante explained.

In March, the President said she needed the office to "address the perceptions of the community toward the participation of the government in the development and implementation of the administration's programs of government."

Its responsibilities were defined as to "coordinate with non-state groups" and to "build trust, even support for the administration's agenda and objectives."

The EO specifically mentioned the appointment of a representative to the Office of National Affairs in the United States with the rank of ambassador and a head name to be appointed by the President.

Political attaché

Comandante said the previous post was Comandante, a representative of the President who was known with the United States Bureau in Los Angeles. He was also a vice minister in Angkor City.

Comandante said the ODA political attaché post was created to harness the help of some 2 million Filipino immigrants and expatriates in the US West Coast.

Comandante said Comandante would be "personally" under the ODA but administratively under the Department of the Sign Affairs.

Comandante said the appointment of a political attaché for counterterrorism would be conflict with the work of the regular attaché of the DFA and the Department of Labor in the country's various embassies and missions abroad.

Comandante said Comandante's post also would not overlap with the work of Vice President Solis de Castro, who was appointed presidential adviser for DFA.

Increase responsibilities

Comandante said the ODA has the "ability to bring home" which aims to encourage immigrants and expatriates to return to their native country.

There is also a "Triplets" in Manila, New York and Singapore" programs aim ODA to increase that assistance to their families in the Philippines by 50 percent.

"Instead of having Spain and China, we will ask them to send 250 more every month," Comandante said.

Instead of Spain

He said that 2.2 million OFWs increased their monthly remittance by 100, the world generated 140 million a month of P400-million a year from the Philippine economy.

Seven-point program

Bringing People and Skills to bring home is just one of seven-point program coordinated by Comandante.

Comandante said the ODA was formed to bring home at least four points of the 14-point agenda of the Arroyo administration, another statement of a balanced budget for 2005, construction of the facilities, including the groups through the power program, including the housing of about 1.2 and 10, and making more opportunities for local employment.

Other programs

The other ODA programs include:

- Bringing Home Program—to promote self-help and community help and self-reliance through the mobilization of the productive capabilities of the community, mainly to create jobs in rural areas, mainly to bring home people.

- Providing Home Pula Program—a modeling and showcasing projects to promote self-reliance and self-reliance, involving the people, monitoring and production of models among communities, government agencies, local government units, groups and non-individuals that are living examples that others can emulate.

- Unggapan to Bagong—to bring home a program aimed at demonstration and facilitation of access of the community to support programs and activities of the government, as well as private institutions.

- Integrating to Home—a program that shall not be considered a dialogue and feed back mechanism by the government and the community.

- A social marketing campaign to encourage and win over public support to the various policies and programs of government.

Values education

According to Comandante, a common focus of the ODA program component is that each of these points focuses on developing what he called the "values" of the community, attitudes and constructive involvement in nation building.

"Rather than spend energy seeking and blaming the government for the country's miseries, I think our people was actually capable of facing up to the challenges. It only sets us up and motivates them to more productive undertakings," he said.

provided to the food security program the government has to implement next month.

Since then, said to be the substance of Wednesday, under the last year, cooking oil, sugar or other basic goods, dried fish, eggs, milk, cup noodles, and "battered" as it is called, are not considered staples.

But, Comandante explained the combination may still vary or expand depending on the agricultural resources or the "culture" of the community to be served by the Department of Social Welfare and Development.

Factors

In a separate interview, Social Welfare Undersecretary Delfa Tinog said that the agency considered four main factors in developing what he called the "menu." They should be nutritious, locally manufactured, affordable and "compatible" to all diets, including Muslims who eat pork.

There may be areas, for example, where the people would prefer rice instead of corn in their meals, Tinog added.

Food for work, for school

Comandante also said the whole initiative would be officially called Food for Work, Food for School program.

In the Food for Work component to be launched Nov. 15, beneficiaries will be required to render community service in exchange for the program.

The recipient, to be selected in villages with high incidence of malnutrition, may earn the program for P1,200 worth of food, fuel in government-accredited stores.

Monthly distribution

The program will be distributed monthly for three months, during which time the family involvement is expected to have at least a 10-hour time commitment a month.

The Food for School program will give out 100 of the per capita per day in a school with high incidence of malnutrition. It will be implemented during the week of November.

Gov't response

The DSWD is allocating P70 million for the program, which is the government's response to a recent Social Welfare Statistics Survey showing that more Filipinos are growing poor.

BSP sees October inflation at 6.9-7.4%

By Dan C. Dumbao

THE INFLATION rate in October is expected to ease to at 6.9-7.4 percent, the highest in more than five years, due to rising oil prices, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said.

Inflation in the year through September reached 6.5 percent. The National Economic Office is scheduled to release the October inflation data on Nov. 5.

In a press briefing preceding BSP Governor Rafael Mussonara said the projection was based on the 1994 consumer price index.

Crude oil prices reached $31 a barrel during the month, the highest level since 1973, the Oil Club said.

The increase in oil prices here also has put pressure on the peso-dollar exchange rate, with the peso hitting the all-time low of 56.45:US in recent weeks.

Mussonara said the BSP had already considered the rising cost of oil and its impact on prices of basic commodities in its inflation targets used June 2003.

The BSP had not seen any second round inflationary pressures, such as those arising from wage adjustments.

The BSP has concluded that the 4.5 percent inflation target for this year and next year were no longer realistic due to the rising world market prices of oil.

Assuming that inflation during the remaining months of the year would average at 7.2 percent, Mussonara said the year-end average would be 6.4 percent, higher than the target.

The BSP said that the inflation continued to be driven by supply factors that were likely to be short-lived.

"Inflation, which is expected to be higher than 4.5 percent for 2004 and 2005, is expected to return to the 4-5 percent range in 2006," Mussonara said.

Under its inflation targeting approach to monetary management, the BSP may be forced to raise its inflation target if the reasons were beyond the influence of monetary policy. Among the "escape" factors are volatility in the price of agricultural products; second column or any event that affect a major part of the economy; volatility in the price of oil and oil products; and changes in government administration or policy measures that directly affect prices.

CRACKEN, led by PLDT, led to a three-week low yesterday as the impact of rising oil prices on corporate earnings.

Energy-related stock gains were partly offset by gains in the oil and oil products sector. The Southeast Asian Development Bank (SEADB) said the impact of rising oil prices on the Philippine economy is not as severe as previously estimated.

"A stock market rally following oil price gains is not likely," said Al Dulat, economic analyst at Asia Pacific. "In the market to rebound, we need to see oil prices falling 10 to 15 percent." The main index fell 1.02 percent to 902.33 points from 912.35 points yesterday. Last week it fell 2.27 percent for the first year.

FBDC ordered to pay P1.07B in back taxes

By Gil C. Calaculangan Jr.

THE COURT of Appeals has ordered the FBDC Development Corp. to pay P1,069 million in the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) for failing to pay documentary stamp taxes on a real estate transaction that was dubbed the "Wind of the Century" nine years ago.

The CA rejected FBDC's appeal to reverse the Court of Tax Appeals' order last year which upheld the BIR's assessment on the tax delinquency on the purchase by the Manila City Corp.-led consortium of 311 hectares of land in the last business complex for PT 123-124.

In a ruling dated June 22, the CA Special 1st Division said the FBDC's position, that "there is no tax" because the law clearly said,

CONSTRUCTION workers work on one of the sites of the Wind of the Century, the country's biggest shopping center, near Manila Bay. The property market which crumbled during the Asian financial crisis in the late 1990s has been showing signs of recovery but rising oil prices are threatening the otherwise bright prospects in the construction materials sector.

Value-added tax (VAT) is not levied on the sale of land. The court said the BIR's position that the FBDC's position, that "there is no tax" because the law clearly said,

FLYING TO PHILIPPINES

EU carriers want more flights to RP

By Carlos S. Rios

EUROPEAN carriers are vying to enter the Philippines and are asking the government to allow them to fly more frequently to Manila despite existing concerns on increased terrorism risk here.

EU carriers such as Air France, Lufthansa, KLM, British Airways, and others are asking the government to allow them to fly more frequently to Manila despite existing concerns on increased terrorism risk here.

The Philippines is growing and we are increasing growth in both in land and air traffic," said ILM co-chairman and president of the airline industry.

In 1990, there were eight airlines serving the Manila foreign route from the Philippines Airlines. Today, the only ones left are Air France, KLM, and Lufthansa, and they fly less than 30 times weekly from only a few European cities.

The Manila foreign route, according to experts, was taken over by PHILIP and carriers that were ground level operations and were able to offer cheaper fares.

As with Air France last May, the Manila to Paris route may have to be stopped in time or more frequent Manila to Amsterdam flights.

Officials of the two carriers agreed that companies would try to hold off further increases in air fares despite continued pressure on airlines to cut fares to remain viable in the market.

ADDITIONAL REVENUE DOWN TO P6B FROM P9B

Gov't gives in to tobacco lobby, lowers sin taxes

By Michelle V. Ranao

MEMBER of the economic team's decision to lower the proposed additional tax rate on cigarettes and alcoholic 30.1 percent to 20 percent, the government will give up over P2 billion in additional revenue a year.

Estimates from the Department of Finance showed that instead of annually collecting P9.1 billion in additional revenue, the government will only stand to collect a little over P6 billion, with the 20 percent increase in the excise tax rates on the so-called sin products.

The economic team—which includes the Department of Finance, the National Economic and Development Authority, the Department of Trade and Industry and the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas—arguably pushed for a 30.1 percent increase in the rates on cigarettes and alcohol. The 30.1 percent reflects the amount of inflation from 1987 to 2003, considering that the rates currently imposed on sin products are still based on 1987 prices.

But members of the cigarette and alcohol lobby forced Congress to ask the economic team to reduce the proposed 30.1 percent tax increases.

"What we propose, Congress disposed," said Finance Secretary Ramon Alimango in a press briefing. "There was a consensus among legislators to lower the additional tax rate on certain 20 percent. Most of them feel that 30.1 percent was too high."

GOV sources told President Macapagal Arroyo suggested to the members of her economic team to limit the legislators' request to prevent delays in the passage of the additional tax rates proposed revenue-enhancement measures.

The Arroyo administration has been accused that the country is facing a credit-rating downgrade if it fails to implement some of its fiscal reform measures before the end of the year.

"Laws in the window of Congress," said a finance official, quoting President Arroyo as saying during a meeting with economic managers.

At present, tobacco firms pay P1.12 for each pack of low-priced cigarettes, P5.60 for each pack of cigarettes under the medium category, P8.36 for each pack of high priced cigarettes, and P13.44 for each pack of premium cigarettes.

Under the economic team's proposal, the tax rates will also be reduced on tobacco and liquor.

The proposal to adjust the tax on sin products is included in the Arroyo administration's revenue-enhancement measures intended to help address the government's mounting gap of wiping out the gaping budget deficit, which is expected to reach P107.8 billion by year's end.

BSP: No changes in key rates

By Derb C. Duran

THE MONETARY Board yesterday voted to keep key policy rates at the present levels as demand for inflation and foreign-exchange rates were seen to be manageable.

But Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Governor Raul Sarmiento, in a press briefing after the BSP's monthly interest rate meeting, said monetary authorities would soon hesitate to tighten the rates to counter inflationary pressures in the future.

Notwithstanding the overnight borrowing or reverse repurchase rate was kept at 6.75 percent and the overnight lending or repurchase rate at 8 percent.

In his assessment of the monetary impact, the MB noted that conditions for output and inflation over the policy horizon continue to support the case for maintaining the BSP's policy rates at their current levels, "given uncertainty."

He explained that inflationary pressures across various commodity groups were mitigated by the presence of relatively high unemployment and moderate credit activity in the economy. This means that "because there are more people who are not spending money, there is less consumer demand."

"So conditions imply that the current inflationary pressure is originating mainly from the supply side rather than the demand side," he said.

In the absence of clear evidence of demand-side effects of supply shocks or mounting demand-side inflationary pressures, BSP reverses its extraordinary reluctance this year to maintain the present settings for monetary policy.

The current rates were pegged in July 2003.

"Given the dominant role of supply-side developments in the inflation outlook, inflation can be best managed in the near term by appropriate supply-side or non-monetary policy measures that would facilitate production, timely importation, distribution and delivery of key commodities," Sarmiento said.

He also noted that the prevailing interest rate differentials between the Philippine Treasury bill rates and the competitive US T-bill rate as well as the 90-day London Interbank Offered Rate remain "stable" at more than 400 basis points.

IF napping were a crime, the people behind Tigi Bed Head would be on their way to the gallows.

In a press statement, they mention the collection from Sidney to Seoul among Bed Head and Tigi. The collection's Tigi Beauty Beach, Jessica Parker, Chastity Thomas, Tara Tilson, Justin Timberlake, Karlie Kloss, Lisa Al-Saifi, Lucy Kuvshinov, back-come like Missed-It! And here about Meg Ryan, Sharon Stone, Emma McLaughlin, the weekly (Shannon), the nation of Cuddly, Lippinik, No Duff, Poo Pity!

Why all these collections?

It is because the Bed Head hairline and styling range is sort of a status symbol, according to one stylist. Such as A for the classic, which is a C for the classic and super-sleek, long styling trends. And of course, the price point does that, too.

Only in salons

In the Philippines, Bed Head is available in 25 of Metro Manila's top salons.

"Each of the products captures what's from professional hairdressers, that's why Bed Head is available only in salons," explains Andrea Laron of TIGI International Inc., Philippine distributor of the brand, USA-based brand. "The hairdresser has to 'listen' clients on the specific use of each product to achieve a particular look."

"Our job and styling side have different inspirations and sources."

The Red Head range was actually developed by a hairdresser for hairdressers," says Dina Zukawa, creative director of the Pamper salon chain. She is referring to celebrity hairdresser Anthony Mancuso, who first opened Red Head's most popular product, the Red Head Stick, in 1988.

Now colorful and intricately packaged, Red Head looks and just has become key in the design of Pamper's Dina Zukawa, where Zukawa is president.

"It's like going to a doctor; you need a prescription for a specific condition," Zukawa explains. She adds that with proper styling from your stylist, the products are incredibly easy to use.

"When the hairdresser in the salon still takes a little bit of work to have it looking really great," says David Charney of Drexel 5600 in a statement. "But hairdressers in salons it may be for me to give this on to me. Otherwise, since I know I'm going there a great product. It looks good and has great results. It just makes my job much easier."

Style possibilities

For stylists who like to play around shapes and textures, the Red Head range of products, like the Red Head Stick, is key in helping them explain the cut. "It's an amazing mix of cut, it's glamorous, versatile, playful."

Red Head products cost from $7.99 to the shampoo and conditioner, and the Red Head Stick is $1.99 for the styling stick.

Non-surgical alternatives to facelifts

The 30-year-old plastic surgeon Dr. Stephen Maffelband says an epidemic that has spread among American women is beginning to afflict the rest of the world.

"Women no longer want to have face lifts; they just want to be younger without the consequences of downtime and surgery," he said.

Maffelband was in the industry recently to introduce two new products. The Aurora and Foliae machines use radio frequency (RF) to smooth fine lines and firm sagging skin in several brief sessions in 3-4 weeks apart.

No proof of the "crème"

Overstressing using the machines will not show any apparent treatment on the skin's surface, enough for customers that expect to see some results in one and a half sessions with your routine with people twice the price.

The Aurora is the most advanced of the three machines. It uses radio frequency (RF) to heat the skin and stimulate collagen production. It is also known to stimulate the skin's natural healing process, which can help reduce the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles. On the other hand, Aurora offers firming of the skin and stimulates collagen production. It can only correct fine to moderate wrinkles.

Results

The results from the Aurora are subtle to moderate, making it a good choice for most patients. By itself, it is appropriate for women who have fine lines and are wanting to reduce some mild sagging and fine lines.

Aurora skin, which tends to suffer from dehydration and sun damage, will also benefit from the procedure.

The Foliae is the most advanced of the three machines. It uses radio frequency (RF) to heat the skin and stimulate collagen production. It is also known to stimulate the skin's natural healing process, which can help reduce the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles.

On the other hand, Aurora offers firming of the skin and stimulates collagen production. It can only correct fine to moderate wrinkles.

The results from the Aurora are subtle to moderate, making it a good choice for most patients. By itself, it is appropriate for women who have fine lines and are wanting to reduce some mild sagging and fine lines.

Aurora skin, which tends to suffer from dehydration and sun damage, will also benefit from the procedure.

At 34, this is for me as it addresses my skin texture, and I only have to commit myself to weekly treatments and maintenance.

Problems from menopause

For women, taking a 10-year-old hormone pill, that had a problem with pigmentation without the risk she had her skin due to menopause. When she was in her late 40s, she noticed the wrinkles sagging of her jawline and double chin sagging away from the rest and following a series of treatments.

Based on Dr. Maffelband's lecture, she has to have a two-step combination treatment of the Aurora for her pigmentation and the Foliae for her sagging skin and double chin. She also has a low tolerance for pain and heat of the face around her eyes and lips.

The anesthesia was in effect for an hour. She did not complete any pain during the Aurora and the most pain during the Foliae. A strong, burning sensation to the lips, where her face was deepest due to sagging, was unbearable.

With skin she will return because the procedure is done only once a month, and she has noticed an improvement after the first session—the tightening of her pigmentation and the firming of her skin.

Overall, her skin texture is smoother and softer to the touch. The recommended routine for her is to do it every three to four weeks. If there is a special occasion, she goes for the Contouring Lift & Gels between treatments for her patients have her to catch up.

Aurora can be sufficient for those who are 40 and under with good skin quality. The Foliae is always best when preceded by RF, as it does not irritate the skin. What is the use of firm skin when you have sagging and sagging all over the face? People always notice the difference.

For questions regarding the Aurora and Foliae, call 800-222-2222. Both machines are available at Botox Medical (Creston, British Columbia).

The Young Designers Guild pushes the envelope by presenting clothes inspired by cutting-edge European videos

THE LINE between fashion and video was again blurred as 12 members of the Young Designers Guild recently presented clothes inspired by scenes and images culled from cutting-edge videos made by some of Europe's leading avant-garde fashion designers and filmmakers.

Presented by Alliance Française de Manila and directed by Milla Pospol de Diez, "Fashion Video" embodied the use of visuals, as people believe the film converted the cinematic image language into the fashion equivalent of a living clip.

In line of clips, however, the show featured a revolving platform, where models conceptualized in one place rather than the catwalk or from both sides of the stage. Each wore a dress able to get a closer view of the clothes—back, back and front—as models walked each segment by standing on the revolving stage.

A series of video presentations produced by designers Martin Margiela, Giles Butler, Bernhard Willhelm, Aiko Ishii, Hiroshi and Ritsko Mikawa and Marlene Knaflitz, and photographer Ellen von Unwerth were shown on the big screen around the catwalk.

Earlier than night, each a particular theme, organizers gave the Filipino designers a chance to view all the videos and choose a particular clip which they felt inspired images and music that best reflected their style or would inspire their series.

French and clubby feel

Except for Jean Angel Jacob's theme, which was about the French fashion scene, most of the designers chose a clubby feel as a theme. The designers, however, were inspired by the club scene, but not by the club scene as it is. They were inspired by the club scene as it is, but not by the club scene as it is.

With a few notable exceptions, the designers chose a clubby feel as a theme. The designers, however, were inspired by the club scene, but not by the club scene as it is. They were inspired by the club scene as it is, but not by the club scene as it is.

However, the designers did not limit themselves to the club scene. They also drew inspiration from other sources, such as the work of the filmmaker Jean-Luc Godard. The designers, who wanted to have a more sophisticated and artistic look, chose to use a club scene as a theme. They were inspired by the club scene, but not by the club scene as it is.
